4 Catholic Actors Share About Their Catholic Faith

Thoughts from Jim Caviezel, Harry Connick, Jr., Eduardo Verástegui and Patricia Heaton

Actor Jim Caviezel on his relationship with Christ

Actress Patricia Heaton as a struggling actress in New York City, on how what remained of the Catholic faith of her childhood, combined with counseling, kept her from suicide.

“I’d sit in my apartment on the Upper West Side and call on the saints, including Patrick and Joseph, for help, and then I’d go see my therapist ... [when I was received back into the Church] it was a great joy ... a beautiful thing.”

“We don’t love Jesus enough. If you go to church, you know He loves you, because you hear it all the time. But do we love Him? I know I don’t tell Him enough.” Read more...

How Do I Talk To God?

DEAR FATHER:

I was reading a spiritual book about personal prayer, and in the book it talks about how to get into a meditative state and just talk to God. I have a wandering mind and find it very difficult to get into a meditative state of mind. Throughout my day, when I am alone, I talk to myself, both in my mind and sometimes aloud. I talk about issues in my life, how I feel about things going on, why I am the way I am, why I struggle with things going on in my life, future events and plans...etc. When I do this, am I talking to God? Could this be a “conversation with Christ”? —DESIRING A RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD
